Citing unnamed sources, the Financial Times reported that the chipmaker is looking at spinning off McAfee, which it bought in 2010 for $7.7 billion and incorporated into its Intel Security division.

John McAfee, founder of McAfee, never understood the relationship between Intel and McAfee.

already different, as are the marketing and sales processes, and there is already no customer overlap."

McAfee sold his shares of the company in the late 1990s, separating himself from the company.

Since then, McAfee moved to Belize and then fled after being accused — but never charged — of murdering his neighbor. More recently, McAfee ran for US president as a member of the Libertarian Party and was recently named CEO of MGT Capital.
